if you seek a closet full of day-to-night essentials (and who doesn't?), look no further than eve gravel's fall/winter 2016/17 collection.

Featuring a large selection of versatile pieces, from loose modal dresses that can hug your body with just one zip to a pair of sarwal pants that can transform into a jumpsuit with a simple colour coordinated t-shirt, each piece comes together to create a full wardrobe of complementary separates. Inspired by the constellations and the expansive galaxy, the designer spreads this motif across her collection in her signature cream and black, mixed in with fall favourites, rust and khaki. According to the designer, the collection also pays tribute to David Bowie, who passed away while the collection was undergoing its finishing touches.

Though Gravel favours soft, draping fabrics, she made sure to include some form-fitting jacquard dresses, classic denim staples, and cozy knits, to satisfy her diverse customer base. The best part? Whether you're a sneakers girl or partial to a stiletto, the designer assures us that every one of these looks can be worn with both. Dilemma averted.

The fall/winter 2016/17 collection, consisting of 40-50 pieces, will officially be available for purchase mid-August.
